

Multi-functional, smart and compact furnishings will trend as more and more people gravitate towards urban dwellings and offices that are small in scale. Another trend making a comeback is antique and vintage furniture blended into interiors of modern residences, giving a rustic yet elegant feel. However, the need of the hour is sustainability with use of natural and upcycled building materials, and the trend is here to stay. Designing interiors involves developing a comfortable yet trendy space which is durable as well.

Three building materials on my list are Concrete for interior flooring, Corian for countertops and décor, and Mild steel for furnishing

Kuntal Vyas Aggarwal, Founder & Design Head, Resaiki Interiors

In interior building materials, we will see exposed natural wood and scrap wood pieces not just for furnishings but also for wall and ceilings panels; granite, marble, natural and engineered stone for surfaces. The next big trend undoubtedly will be Terrazzo - a composite material consisting of small chips of granite, marble, quartz and glass that evoke a playful, confetti-like abstract spirit to walls and floorings.

Vol. 61 Special

MGS Modern Green Structures & Architecture

An NBM Media Group Publication

+ Interior Design

INTERIORS TRENDS & MATERIALS

Home Décoratives

Flooring

Furniture

Kitchen Fittings

Faucets

Lighting

Bath Suites

Colors

Office Design

Boutique Homes